5. Focus on Outcome based education (OBE):	Christ College follows meticulously the directions of the affiliating university on OBE in all its programs. Program Outcomes (PO) and Course Outcomes (CO) are clearly stated on our website and in the departments and the college follows a formal mechanism of mapping POs and COs. Student handbook explicitly states graduate attributes which clearly articulates in a comprehensive manner the outcomes students should exhibit as they graduate from the campus. These attributes are developed to align with specific outcomes like Student performance in university examination and ranks, Placements, Participation in events, performance in competitive examinations and discipline specific exams. Through OBE approach, teaching and assessment methods are designed to best achieve clearly defined outcomes and to assess the standard at which they are attained. There are ongoing efforts for adjusting teaching and assessment strategies to address the attainment of those outcomes and standards. All teachers are trained to adopt student centric teaching learning methodology. Continuous Internal Assessments and assignments focus on achievement of course outcomes in an incremental way. An example for good practice followed in the campus is the emphasis given to articulate certain outcomes in each course in terms of demonstrable skills apart from the focus on knowledge and attitude. Another example for good practice is the continuous training provided to faculty members on topics related to OBE like Revised Bloom’s Taxonomy, Assurance of Learning, constructive alignment and similar topics.
6. Distance education/online education:	Teaching, learning and evaluation/assessments are smoothly conducted through various digital platforms and LMS during pandemic and at present the college follows blended learning methodologies. The faculty were imparted extensive training through workshops on E Resources and teaching learning as well as usage of different google applications and tools and they are encouraged to complete google certified courses and online courses offered by international institutes. Teachers are well versed in imparting and delivering course content in the online mode using ICT tools and digital pedagogy, generating interest in students. 	Google classrooms are effectively used for course conduction and evaluation process and Study materials are available on Google Classroom for each course. The online skill development programs were initiated by the college during pandemic to offer students opportunity to develop necessary basic skills that equip them for the outside world. The college has registered for online certification courses offered by affiliating university. The well-established college infrastructure with smart room, technology enabled classrooms with interactive panels, digital display boards etc provided opportunities for real time interactions with experts through conferences, webinars, guest lectures, industry demonstrations etc. conducted through platforms like zoom, google meet and Webex. Associating with coursera online learning platform, college provided opportunities for students to get certified in various courses from global universities and industries and opened avenues for self-paced learning. Innovative AI generated tools like Curipod and Autodraw are used to infuse gamified approach in learning. Our students are actively engaged in various activities to foster their skills in digital communication and establish their online presence through Linkedln, Instagram and You tube. We encourage blog writing on platforms like Blogger.com where students articulate their thoughts and share their insights. The college practices live streaming of its events and activities. Our educational activities are elevated through design tools (Canva, Adobe express, Premier Pro, VN) and we committedly embrace technology where students gain captivating digital educational experiences

A prominent initiative is the "Voters Awareness Campaign-Rally," where the ELC collaborates with the student council to educate students and the community about elections, emphasizing informed voting and civic participation. This showcases our commitment to civic engagement and electoral literacy. The ELC also initiates various competitions for students that help in articulating their democratic and thought-provoking views. The College in collaboration with Vadagaonsheri Constituency arranges Voters Registration Drive every year for students inside campus.
5. Extent of students above 18 years who are yet to be enrolled as voters in the electoral roll and efforts by ELCs as well as efforts by the College to institutionalize mechanisms to register eligible students as voters.	The students above 18 years of age are educated and encouraged to be the registered voter by way of awareness camps and pledge. The ELC conducts year-wise camps for the same. 4. Quality Indicator Framework(QIF)

Criterion 1 - Curricular Aspects

1.1 Curricular Planning and Implementation

1.1.1

The Institution ensures effective curriculum planning and delivery through a well-planned and documented process including Academic calendar and conduct of continuous internal Assessment

Response:

The institution ensures that a well-planned and documented process is followed in delivering the curriculum effectively and it implements outcome-based education as prescribed by the affiliating university following its academic calendar.

Process for effective curriculum planning

At the outset of every academic year, the Principal conducts meetings with Heads of Departments to develop strategies for effective curriculum planning. Academic planning starts with the preparation of an academic calendar by various departments, which is well aligned with the university calendar which prescribes duration of semesters, its commencement, and completion dates. The college prepares a handbook for students which includes graduate attributes, course details, university guidelines of examination, guidelines of CBCS system etc. After subject allocation, faculties prepare course plan which contains course objectives, course outcomes, pedagogy, and continuous internal assessment activities. Course plans are presented in the department in the presence of Principal and SMEs and modified integrating everyone’s feedback, and later shared with students. Activity planner with respect to each course is prepared by departments that ensures the effective conduct of various activities as is essential for successful understanding of the course. Faculties maintain a teacher’s diary which records daily teaching and it serves to be a record of syllabus completion. Apart from centralised examination cell that monitors university examinations, Departments have specific teams to prepare timetable, conduct internal examinations, monitor conduct of Continuous Internal Assessments, analyse the results and conduct other domain specific activities and also document it. Feedback from various stake holders is analysed which helps to identify the gap in academics and industry and content beyond curriculum is designed by the introduction of various add on and certificate courses

Process for effective curriculum delivery

Institution provides well-maintained class rooms with interactive panel, LCD projector, and internet connectivity for effective curriculum delivery. Teachers are trained to impart curriculum through innovative teaching methods and digital tools. Institution adopts learner-centric methods which includes activity-based learning like project presentations, tutorials, role play, debates, brainstorming sessions etc. Course wise Google classrooms are created for sharing academic resources with students. Contents from online sources and webinars, expert talks, guest lectures, seminars, industrial visits, internships, corporate connect programs, etc compliments the curriculum delivery. Each department regularly evaluates students through a continuous assessment system using class tests, assignments, tutorials, quizzes, case studies, management games etc and an evaluation of their performance is communicated to the students.

Course end surveys are conducted for attainment of course outcomes and program outcomes

Apart from encouraging faculty to attend external professional development programs, College regularly organises programs to help them stay updated on latest pedagogical and assessment practices. Library committee ensures there is adequate print and digital resources are available in the library that support faculty for their effective curriculum delivery. The effectiveness of teaching learning processes is assessed through faculty self-evaluation, performance appraisal process and collecting feedback from students. Frequent demand from University for our teacher for syllabus restructuring, paper setting, paper evaluation etc. is evidence of our commitment towards effective curriculum planning and delivery.

Response:

Student centric methods, such as experiential learning, participative learning and problem solving methodologies are used for enhancing learning experiences and teachers use ICT- enabled tools including online resources for effective teaching and learning process

Students are trained through a variety of student-centric pedagogic approaches to equip them for productive employability that suits the changing needs of today's dynamic environment. Some illustrative examples of practices that help students to reflect and internalise the curriculum are given below:

Experiential Learning*:

College emphasises the philosophy of integrating experiences into the teaching learning processes to the extent possible in all programs. Department management uses case study approach extensively where students have the opportunity to reflect and analyse real-life experiences of business situations. The courses embed experiential learning activities like Market Square where students are grouped and set up stalls to sell a product/service to the entire campus. Complementing theoretical learning in classrooms, field trips, industrial visits and practical sessions in laboratories are conducted to gain practical experience. Department of Commerce organises visits to RBI, Bombay Stock Exchange, live sessions by Accounting professionals and Tax Experts, Budget Analysis event as part of experiential learning initiatives. Department of Arts have organised rural immersion trips, MUN, Skill development workshops, and Storytelling events. Software Bootcamps, hackathons, Gaming competitions, daily lab sessions are some of experiential practices of Computer Science department. Some common programs in all departments providing experiential learning are internships, Industry relevant Certificate courses and add-on programs conducted by market experts, Exhibitions, theatre, Alumni Connects, and association activities.

Participative Learning:

To promote active learning though interactive and participative approach, faculty members use practices like group discussions, peer learning, debates, brainstorming sessions, street theatre, group presentations, book reviews, role plays, and poster presentations. Every class has team presentations as compulsory component of continuous assessment which help students to interact with each other to explore more deeply into content which in turn facilitates more engagement and peer learning. BBA programs have Research and Project exhibitions, business plan presentations, co-curricular club activities etc. as opportunities for participatory learning and develop communication skills and analytical thinking abilities. Participation in domain specific intercollege fests outside campus and conduct of various Business -Tech Arts and commerce fests inside the campus (FIESTA, MANIFEST, COMMCLAVE, TECHNOFEST, ECOMANIA, UDAAN) are further platforms for interactive learning.

Problem Solving:

Lab sessions in the courses of computer science, mathematics and computer application engage students with problem solving pedagogy on a regular basis. Case analysis approach adopted in business programs is a rigorous approach in which real business problems are input for students to come up with practical, effective and relevant solutions which in turn enhances analytical thinking, reasoning skills and problem-solving abilities. Programs like Economics and Commerce have several courses like statistics, econometrics, business maths etc. which have opportunities for enhanced problem solving.

ICT Enabled Teaching:

Faculty members of the college extensively integrates ICT into teaching learning as all classrooms are enables with interactive boards, projectors and Wi-Fi connectivity to ensure increased engagement, personalize learning, and access to a variety of content. Commonly used online tools include Google classroom, MS Office, Quizizz, YouTube, Kahoot, Mentimeter, Flippity, google workspace, Curipod, Whimsical etc. Teachers embeds online courses in the program complementing the curriculum.

2.5 Evaluation Process and Reforms

2.5.1

Mechanism of internal/ external assessment is transparent and the grievance redressal system is time- bound and efficient

Response:

The college follows a choice-based credit system for all programs in accordance with university guidelines. The assessment for these programs has 30% of the grade coming from Continuous Internal Assessment (CIA) and 70% from the end term University exams.

Internal assessment

CIAs are conducted by individual departments. Continuous internal assessment encompasses a range of activities, including MCQs, open book tests, project presentations, viva-voce, group discussions, seminar reports etc. Each department creates activity planner, and evaluation is done also on the basis of activities conducted for specific courses by respective faculty members adhering to the schedules in the planner. Once the entire internal assessment process concludes, the respective faculty members will submit the completed marksheets to the Heads of Departments within15 days of the conduct of examination. After confirmation by HoDs, the data will be entered into the university examination portal and documents are shared with examination cell.

External assessment

The affiliated university, SPPU, has full authority over the external examination process and regularly provides guidelines and directives. The end semester examination process begins with filling the exam forms once University intimates the college regarding the same. Once the exam form submission process is complete, the college office will issue hall tickets which is generated by the University. The exam cell is responsible for posting all University-issued exam-related notices, such as circulars and timetables and invigilation duty list. The University prepares the question papers, which are printed by the College Exam Officer (CEO), along with a designated faculty member. For FY, corrections are carried out at the college level, with the exam cell maintaining records. In the case of SY and TY, valuation occurs at the University level. College has to pack the answer sheets and send to the CAP centre.

Grievance Redressal Mechanism

Internal Examination

The college has a transparent, time-bound, and effective mechanism to address any grievances related to internal exam. To lodge a complaint, students can access the grievance form on the college website in the "Students' Grievances" section. They can submit the form via email to exam@christcollegepune.org while also providing a hard copy to the class teacher. Exam cell takes up the grievance and initiate appropriate redressal and the action taken is communicated to students within a week. If a student raises concerns about marks, he/she can opt for revaluation within seven days of declaring the results on notice board. Ones he/she applies for revaluation, the process is undertaken by exam cell. The Principal and CEO continuously observe every process of internal assessments and initiate necessary rectifications.

External Examination

The grievances related to end-semester SPPU examinations such as revaluation, and relevance of the queries are collected by the CEO through the HoDs and subject teachers, and is communicated to the Exam Section of SPPU. Students can obtain photocopies of their answer sheets from the University. The university section officer responsible for the colleges will thereon take necessary action and the same will be communicated to the college and subsequently to concerned student.

2.6 Student Performance and Learning Outcomes

2.6.1

Programme Outcomes (POs) and Course Outcomes (COs) for all Programmes offered by the institution are stated and displayed on website

Response:

Christ College as an affiliated college of Savitrabhai Phule Pune University strictly adheres to the Outcome based education philosophy of the University. The college focuses on the outcomes students need to exhibit going though the various educational experiences within the campus. The institutional outcomes are translated into graduate attributes and all programs, activities, events, pedagogies etc. are aligned to this vision of achieving graduate outcomes.

Program Outcomes and Course Outcomes

Every program offered by the college has clearly articulated Program outcomes which provides an accurate and comprehensive understanding of the program in terms of the knowledge, skills and attitude a student should gain as he or she move through the program. Program Outcomes are aligned to the institutional values and outcomes and expressed through graduate attributes. Attainment of program outcomes primarily happens through various courses of the program. Each course has explicitly stated Course outcomes mentioning what learners will know or be able to do as a result of completing that course. The courses offered for a program have definite knowledge, skill sets and attitudes that are to be acquired and the subject faculty carefully identifies them and defines it in the course plan. The course outcomes identify the minimum achievement required for success in the course and are based on the principles of Revised Blooms Taxonomy.

Communication regarding POs and COs:

At Christ College, before each semester begins, subject faculty prepares course plans in which course objectives and outcomes are specified. At the department level, each faculty present the course plan before other teachers of the department, Principal and subject matter expert for their feedback. Once approved, the course plan document which consists of program outcomes, course objectives and outcomes, content, pedagogy, and assessment details is shared with the students through LMS. More information on these outcomes and the requirements for successful attainment is communicated to the students in the introductory lectures and it is displayed through presentations during orientation programs and parents' meetings as well. Regular Mentoring sessions also provide necessary clarifications to students.

IQAC regularly organises training programs to enhance the understanding of faculty members with regard to outcome-based education and various aspects of it. Faculty are also trained the process of articulating meaningful relevant outcomes, different pedagogical approaches to attain the stated outcomes and methods of assessment to effectively measure the attainment level of outcomes. Graduate attributes, Program Outcomes and Course Outcomes are displayed on the institute's website. Each department reviews the outcomes prescribed by the affiliating University and complement them to meet the current requirements of various careers available to the student community. The feedback system from the various stakeholders including students, parents, alumni, and industry helps to identify the gaps in our curriculum and plug it with additional content, activities, guest sessions, add-on programs etc. A Course survey and a program exit survey are used as additional evaluation tools to verify the attainment of Program Outcomes and Course Outcomes apart from the grades received by the students.

Attainment of POs and COs are evaluated.

Explain with evidence in a maximum of 500 words

Response:

Evaluation of attainment levels of course outcomes (COs) and programme outcomes (POs) is an important part of achieving academic excellence and ensuring an institution's quality enhancement process. The college's IQAC has a well-defined procedure for evaluating COs and POs in order to achieve academic excellence and ensure the delivery of quality education.

Program outcomes (POs) are assessed using both direct and indirect evaluation methods. The direct method involves assessing students through university examinations, evaluating their knowledge, and continuously assessing assignments. In contrast, indirect methods, such as collecting student feedback, conducting surveys, and engaging in discussions, provide insights into program and course outcomes.

Measuring the Attainment of COs and POs:

All departments offering various programs are required to assess students' achievement of program outcomes using the established strategy. Given the substantial number of enrolled students across different programs, this evaluation is being conducted using a random sampling approach. The head of each department is entrusted with the responsibility of creating a report on program outcome attainment following the checklist provided by the IQAC.

Direct method: Programme outcome attainment (50% Weightage)

- The direct approach to program outcome attainment involves assessing student performance during university examinations.
- Following the release of university exam results, academic departments evaluate the achievement of program outcomes.
- To ensure a representative sample, departments randomly select 20 percent of students from each program for the assessment of both program outcomes (PO) and course outcomes (CO).
- The percentage of marks earned by these selected students in their university examinations is recorded in a specified format.

Indirect method: Program exit survey of final-year students is considered through a designed questionnaire which addresses all aspects of the curriculum, CO/PO for UG/PG students. (50% Weightage)

- The survey questionnaire is designed to address different academic streams, such as arts, commerce, science, and management. It consists of ten questions, each rated on a 10-point scale.
- The survey aims to gather feedback from students regarding their perception of knowledge, skills, and attitude acquired during their academic journey.

- To evaluate program outcomes, 50% of the total marks are allocated based on the responses received from the questionnaires.

The final evaluation is done through combining the score of the direct and indirect method and taking the average as the attainment.

The attainment is identified at the following levels

Sr. No.	% of Max Marks	Level of Attainment
1	90 to100	Outstanding
2	75 to 89	Excellent

7.2 Best Practices

7.2.1

Describe two best practices successfully implemented by the Institution as per NAAC format provided in the Manual

Response:

Best Practice 1

1. Title: An Exemplar of Whole Person Development – Unleashing Potential and Nurturing Excellence

2. Objectives

- To develop students as whole persons by nurturing their intellectual, physical, professional, psychological, social and spiritual capacities to be effective in their future career and personal life.

- To instill resilience and confidence among students in the face of a Brittle, Anxious, Non-linear and Incomprehensible world

- To inculcate divergent thinking and creativity through a more holistic, discovery-based, discussion-based, and analysis-based learning.

3. The Context

With the emergence of Artificial Intelligence and related disruptive technologies, the world of employments and skills have changed completely in the last few years. Various agencies like world economic forum continuously assess the trends and future of work and prescribes job skills for the future. A graduate should possess multi-dimensional competencies in the domains of cognitive skills, self-efficacy, management skills, technology skills, working with others and engagement skills to respond to the rapidly changing demands of future careers. In this context, Christ College has articulated graduate attributes covering all important aspects of knowledge, skills, attitudes, values and habits to provide a whole person education to all the students through the educational experience in the campus.

4. The Practice

The whole person education as a practice Christ College developed has a four-phased approach called ADER (Analyze, Design, Execute, and Review).

Analyze

The whole person education is a comprehensive process that involves all academic departments, centers, associations, committees and clubs of the college. The process starts with analyzing data and information from various sources like feedback from stakeholders, previous year activity reports, students' feedback, conversations with industry, reports from national and international agencies like WEF etc.

Design

In the Design phase, various departments and student organizations such as NSS, SCA, SDO, CDM etc. of the college develops annual calendar and activity planner at the beginning of an academic year. This is in tune with the graduate attributes articulated from the data curated in the Analyze phase. The attributes are in the domains of academic, professional, personal, interpersonal and societal skills required for the future.

Execute

The whole person development program as a multi-dimensional educational experience is executed at various levels in the campus through the initiatives of academic departments and other associations, centers etc. A few examples of the Graduate attributes and various activities executed to achieve them in the campus are:

- Creative thinking - Cultural Events, Print and Digital Media creations, Exhibitions hours is required for the successful execution of the practice.

In terms of resources, most important need is developing the skills and expertise of faculty members to be effective facilitators of the program which require ongoing training programs. There is also the need for adequate infrastructure and financial allocation in the annual budget to make the practice effective and sustainable.
